TL;DR

- 1. The 10-year hit 5.342% and reversed: highest since 2002 intraday, closed 5.243%. The 2-year fell 10.2bp. The curve has steepened ~10bp in two days to +45bp.
- 2. The dollar broke out: DXY +0.57% to 102.04, a 52-week high and above Hedgeye's last published ceiling. Europe fell 1–2% on its own yield spike (OAT 4.96%, Bund >3.6%).
- 3. Micron reset the AI trade: FQ4 revenue $54.2bn, FQ1 guide $61.5bn, supply "much tighter" into 2027–28. Nikkei +3.3%, SOX +1.6%.
- 4. Oil is back above $100: Brent Dec settled 102.31 after China halted October fuel exports.
- 5. Tonight: September payrolls at 20:30 GMT+8 (~90k, 4.1% expected); Tesla Q3 deliveries (~462k consensus).

2 The big picture — what it means

- 1. The long end found a ceiling for one afternoon, not a top. The 10-year printed 5.342% and the 30-year 5.692% before both reversed. No outlet in this run attributed the reversal. The 2-year's 10.2bp fall is the bigger signal: the front end is pricing out the October hike that was ~70% likely on Monday and ~35% after Wednesday's PCE (CME, via Yahoo).
- 2. Inflation cooled; prices paid did not. August core PCE was +0.2% m/m, 3.0% y/y against 3.3%, partly from a BEA methodology revision worth ~0.3pt. A day later ISM prices paid jumped to 77.9 vs 72 expected. Measured inflation and input inflation are moving in opposite directions.
- 3. The bond problem is now global. French 10-year 4.96%, highest since 2002; OAT-Bund spread 133bp, widest in 14 years; German CPI 3.3%. Europe's indices fell 1.0–2.2% on Thursday while the S&P rose. US yields are no longer moving alone.
- 4. Memory is the cleanest AI earnings story left. Micron printed an 87% gross margin and said it "does not foresee when supply and demand will return to balance". That moved Tokyo more than New York: Nikkei +2,203 points, led by Advantest and Tokyo Electron.
- 5. AI financing is getting circular, and the market noticed. Broadcom fell 2.1% after Anthropic's IPO filing showed Broadcom lending up to $42bn to lease its own chips. Last week Nvidia's $150bn buyback failed to lift its stock.
- 6. Oil's floor is policy, not supply. Saudi pipelines are back and Hormuz flows are rising, yet Brent rose 6.4% in two sessions. China's fuel-export halt and record US diesel (~$6.50/gal) show product markets are where the shortage lives.

3 Rates, currencies & commodities

- Curve: 2s10s +45.2bp, 10s30s +37.0bp. Bull steepening at the front, bear pressure at the long end — the classic late-cycle twist.
- Credit: HYG 76.90, a fresh 52-week low (76.39 intraday), 45¢ below Tuesday's floor. LQD and TLT also set 52-week lows.
- Rates vol: MOVE 108.1, down 2.1% Thursday after 110.5 Wednesday.
- Dollar: DXY 102.04; EUR/USD 1.1243, 0.25% above its 52-week low. USD/JPY 158.1; JGB 10-year above 3% (NewsOnJapan).
- Crude: WTI 92.87 and Brent Dec 102.31 settles; Brent-WTI $9.44. US gasoline averages ~$4.45 and diesel ~$6.50 (Quartz).
- Metals: gold spot $4,172, copper spot $6.47 — copper is 3¢ above Tuesday's floor.

What Keith actually said

No Hedgeye text was read this run, so no new quotes are printed. The last verified quote, from Tuesday's Early Look: "WHEN the Risk Range™ Signals start signaling LOWER-HIGHS, that's when I know even The Express himself may have reached exhaustion". Thursday's intraday 5.342% is a higher high on price; whether the band confirmed it is unknown.

Health Care XLV	166.20	-1.32%	-1.35%	5.9%

- Leaders: energy on oil, tech on memory. XLK is 0.5% from its 52-week high while the S&P is 1.9% off.
- Laggards: health care, down 2.6% in two days (J&J -2.3% Thu, Lilly -2.3% Wed, UNH -2.1% Wed). This is Hedgeye's long, now below its last-seen band floor.
- Rotation: rate-sensitive defensives (staples, real estate) lost on both days — consistent with yields, not growth, driving the tape.

8 Forward — futures & the week ahead

- Previous closes (Thu): Nikkei 68,956.50 (+3.30%), KOSPI 6,971.36 (+1.95%), Sensex 71,909.70 (-0.79%, a fresh 52-week low intraday at 71,293). Hang Seng and Shanghai last traded Wednesday (24,613 and 3,842) — holiday.
- Handover: SOX +1.6% and Micron's guide; higher oil; a dollar at a cycle high. Japan and Korea already priced the Micron leg on Thursday.
- Japan: Topix lagged the Nikkei as banks and trading houses fell — a narrow, chip-led rally. Yen at 158 with JGBs above 3%.
- Korea/Taiwan: both currencies weakened Thursday even as KOSPI rallied; the dollar is the cap on foreign inflows.
- Single instrument most likely to move: the US 2-year at 20:30 on payrolls. Until then Asia trades a holding pattern.

13 AI watch

- Micron: industry DRAM bit growth seen in the low 20s and NAND mid-20s for both 2027 and 2028, all supply-constrained.
- Anthropic: IPO reported as early as mid-November (Yahoo). Its filing shows up to $42bn of Broadcom lending for chip leases.

- Tokyo: Advantest, Tokyo Electron, SoftBank and Kioxia led the Nikkei's 2,203-point day.

14 Beyond the markets

- US diesel at ~$6.50 a gallon is a record, ~70% above pre-war levels (Quartz) — the inflation input ISM prices paid just caught.
- Nike is ~80% below its November 2021 peak. Micron's single quarter ($54.2bn) now exceeds Nike's entire fiscal-year revenue run-rate ($4 \times $11.2\text{bn} \approx \45bn).
- The BEA's methodology change lowered core PCE by ~0.3pt retroactively to 2021. The Fed's preferred gauge got cooler partly by being re-measured.
